

ABSTRACT

In an optical recording/reproducing device, an address of recording data showing an outermost periphery managed by the device is managed, whereby all non-recorded areas at an inner side than the recording address of the outermost periphery managed upon an additional writing prohibition process (finalization) are changed to recorded areas.